Historical Context:

The Connaught Hospital was similar in plan to that of Cambridge Hospital – with pavilions arranged off a central corridor. The administration block is the sole survivor of an extensive hospital complex built 1895-7 and opened 1898 (see OS map 1910 1:2500). The hospital declined in use after WWII and ceased to function in the early 1960s. It was subsequently used as a regimental pay office and then by the Dental Corp. Most of the hospital buildings were demolished in 1988 with the administration building retained and refurbished in 1995 as the Officers Mess of the 2nd battalion of the Princess of Wales's Royal regiment.
