A hotel was first erected in 1855, built by a Mr Hemmings as a large wooden building with verandahs. The hotel had a tap and stables and a roller skating rink. It was frequented by Army Officers, the Royal Family and other dignitaries. It overlooked the Aldershot Camp Races and attracted guests at the Farnborough Cup. It was rebuilt in the 1880s and following a fire in 1903. The Edwardian building was known the world over by many officers in the British Army.

This building is included on the List of Buildings of Local Significance due to its high evidential, historic, aesthetic and community values.
