Historical Context:

The South East District Headquarters group comprising; the headquarters (Grade II listed – see also list description), former Post Office, Alison and Cranbrook House, stables and Military Police Barracks forms one of the most significant and prominent groups in the military town and is located on a prominent corner of the conservation area.

These buildings vary in architectural quality with the former stables displaying less architectural features than others in the group. The former stables however do form an important part of the group. For this reason, the former stables are considered to have high evidential and historic value and significance.
