Former ward to isolation hospital, c1890s, now part of barracks. Equivalent of two storey to main range. Square plan with small wing to north (probably an addition) and later further extension north. Red brick in stretcher bond with hipped natural slate roof and red clay ridge tiles and two tall red brick chimneys (prominent features in the barrack group). Double-nailhead decorative brick string course at cill level and plinth of engineering bricks. Carved timber brackets to projecting eaves matching those seen to other early buildings on the site (Singapore, Germany and Cyprus Blocks). Tall windows to main range (now replaced).

Hong Kong Block forms part of the wider group which makes up the architecturally and historically significant Thornhill Barracks complex.

Historical Context: Hong Kong Block forms part of the wider group which makes up the architecturally and historically significant Thornhill Barracks complex. Formerly part of the isolation hospital, probably a ward, Hong Kong Block is one of the earliest buildings on the site, probably original to the Isolation Hospital period (the building appears on the 1897 Ordnance Survey Map) and is therefore of high evidential, historical and aesthetic value, despite alterations to the windows.
