Crowthorne House was commissioned by the Raike Family circa 1891-1895. The house was then bought by the Secretary of State in 1903, for use as a Senior Officers Residence. The property has been in continuous ownership of the MOD since this time. The architect is unknown, but thought to be AH Guyer. The style of the house is that of Arts and Crafts. The original windows exist, with a particularly impressive curved bay window and corner doors, with curved window at first floor. Split pane timber casements, with some lead detailing to upper panels. The property is constructed of brick to the ground floor and rubble or stone harled render to the first floor. The gables are tile hung with bullnose tiles. The roof is a plain clay tile, with tall chimneystacks, complete with pots. Lean to open glazed loggia. Classical style portico entrance gate and secured boundary fence. No internal details.
